

NCS' s Innovative College Research Award

學校要聞

On July 19th, the National Science Council announced the list of recipients of its 2011 Innovative College Research Award. Among the recipients was Yeh You-ming, a soon-to-be-graduating student from the Department of Computer Science & Info Engineering.

Yeh' s research involves exploring the design & practical application of tracking technology such as Visual Sensor networks. During the research process, he was guided by Department professor Chang Chih-yung.

Professor Chang noted that through research training & practical application of knowledge, the experience allows students to gain a strong foundation for future academic pursuits & helps to trains student' s skills in the area of information technology.